HARLEQUIN TV TILES™

The ideal television studio has a laser-accurate finish which shrugs off the rigors of equipment, trolleys, scenery, lighting trusses, carpenters and most other hazards you can name. But the ideal studio floor does not exist. It gets marked, pitted and scarred, which is a headache for the studio manager.

HARLEQUIN TV TILES are the answer. We make them a full 36" square (that's the largest vinyl tile available in the world). They instantly lay flat and stay flat. It is often helpful to bond some tiles with low-tack double-sided tape and this will transform a doubtful surface into a smooth studio base on which the camera crew can roll vibration-sensitive dollies with confidence.

Commercial floor tiles are produced to a tolerable degree of squareness, which can be rectified by experienced floor contractors. But HARLEQUIN TV TILES are square to engineering standards. They have to be, because busy studio operatives have to cover big areas within minutes without running out of square - a severe headache for the unwary!

TV Tile - Vinyl Floor

Every single HARLEQUIN TV TILE is inspected to stringent standards. For instance, we grind off as little as a few thousandths of an inch to ensure tiles conform to our thickness tolerance. Regular quality controls are made on chemical formulation; flexibility; resistance to indentations, and solvents; color; reflectivity and weight. Tiles out of any tolerance are scrapped without discussion.
